At the exhibition, a thread will lead us to the past, to a country cottage. It will create weft and warp, take us to the weaving workshop from which the perebores were coming out, and lead us towards the future - towards the new digital techniques that recreates the modules of traditional patterns written in code line by line.

In addition, on November 13 at 1:00 p.m a curatorial tour, conducted by the author of the work, Monika Trypuz, will be organized. The following issues will be discussed during the tour:

- stencil as a record of memory and the starting point of "Attention",
- evolution of the techniques of working on looms - light boxes and mapping,
- an attempt to combine two trends in contemporary art: return to craftsmanship and new technologies,
- "Pereborial network" - artificial intelligence designs new ornaments.

There are limited places for curatorial tours. Registrations are made at tel. 81 533 85 13 ext. 36.
